In my last newsletter, I invoked the title of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.’s last book to urge choosing community over chaos; and I outlined my ideas for a better deal on healthcare. In this edition, I do an analysis of the recent tax bill and propose a better deal on taxes—one that prioritizes working families, promotes American jobs and wages, and protects Medicare and Medicaid. The nation’s tax system ought to reflect our values.

During last month’s commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of Dr. King’s assassination, I reread his so-called “mountaintop” speech—his final public remarks, delivered in support of striking Memphis sanitation workers on the evening before his untimely death. In that speech, King recounts the parable of the Good Samaritan and implores the crowd to “Let us develop a kind of dangerous unselfishness.”

As the nation again confronts tremendous chaos, disorder and acrimony, it is time to honor Dr. King’s teachings through both words and deeds. Overcoming selfishness and greed require us to unite with the “kind of dangerous unselfishness,” King called for fifty years ago. The new tax law, in my opinion, selfishly creates a few wealthy winners and many middle income losers. I find it to be a danger to American jobs, unfair to working families, and an attack on Americans health and the social safety net.

It ultimately raises taxes on 86 million middle-income families, gives $1.3 trillion in permanent tax cuts to corporations and explodes the deficit by more than $2 trillion. It decimates the affordable housing market and puts Medicare, Medicaid and Social Security at great risk.
The New Republican Tax Law: Was it Worth It?

Tax filing season has just concluded. Now is the time to consider the full consequences of the new tax law and its effects on the economy, the deficit, jobs and wages. Consider the facts below and ask yourself whether it was worth it.

New Republican Tax Law’s Effect on Affordable Housing. At least 11 million families pay more than half of their income on rent. One recent study named North Charleston as the #1 and Columbia as the #8 ranked city for evictions in the country. There is an existing shortfall of millions of affordable homes around the country and the new tax law is going to make our affordable housing crisis worse.

By reducing the corporate rate from 35 to 21 percent, the new tax law also reduces the benefits of the Low Income Housing Tax Credit. As a result, fewer investors and developers will finance affordable housing projects and 235,000 fewer units will be built over the next ten years. That is a decline of roughly 20 percent and would mean the loss of more than 262,000 jobs. As South Carolina grapples with the increasing problem of high rents and housing prices, we can ill afford this dramatic decrease in affordable housing.

Permanent Corporate Cuts in the New Republican Tax Law. While the individual income tax cuts are temporary, the corporate tax rate cut from 35% to 21% is permanent. When the tax rates go back up on individuals, the corporate tax cuts will remain.

Incentives for Offshoring in the New Republican Tax Law. Instead of applying the new corporate rate of 21% to all U.S. companies, the tax law has a new 10% minimum tax for foreign profits of U.S. companies.

It also excludes profits from “tangible assets” like manufacturing plants and equipment from the minimum tax, thereby creating a tax incentive to build factories overseas, not in the U.S.

Stock Buybacks Instead of Wage Increases after Republican Tax Law. Republicans promised that wages would increase by thousands of dollars per household as a result of this windfall to corporations. Instead, corporations are spending 60 times as much on stock buybacks ($409 billion), which funnel profits to executives and shareholders, as worker bonuses and wage hikes ($6.9 billion).

To date, corporations have announced more than $400 billion in stock buybacks to benefit wealthy shareholders while quietly laying off more than 137,000 employees.

New Republican Tax Law Explodes the Debt. The tax law was not paid for. In fact, the federal government will borrow more than $2 trillion over the next decade to pay for it. Republicans, including President Trump and Speaker Ryan, are already talking about the need for “entitlement reforms” in order to reduce the deficit and pay down the national debt.

Republicans have already Proposed Cutting Medicare, Medicaid & Social Security. President Trump’s budget proposes to slash $500 billion from Medicare, $1.4 trillion from Medicaid, $72 billion from Social Security disability and $214 billion from SNAP.

These programs are the backbone of the federal safety net. They are earned benefits that Americans have paid into over their lifetimes. They would not be in jeopardy but for this reckless tax scheme that is plunging us deeper into debt.
